Christian Theology 09 2020 This book gives an accessible account of classical Greek history, from the aftermath of the Persian Wars in 480 bc to the death of Alexander the Great in 323 bc. The author describes the years which witnessed the flourishing of democracy in Athens; the establishment of the Athenian empire; the Peloponnesian war, which involved the whole Greek world; the development of Macedonian power under Philip II; and the rise of Alexander the Great. His account combines narrative with analysis, and deals with major social, economic and cultural developments as well as with military events. Rhodes details the evidence on which his narrative is based, which includes inscriptions, coins and material remains, and considerations which have to be borne in mind in using this evidence."

Gender, Race, and Class in Media Oct 11 2020 Gender, Race, and Class in Media provides students a comprehensive and critical introduction to studies by encouraging them to analyze their own media experiences and interests. The book explores some of the most important forms of culture—including the Internet, social media, television, films, music, and advertising—in three distinct but related areas of investigation: the economy of production, textual analysis, and audience response. Multidisciplinary issues of power related to gender, race, and class are interwoven with a wide range of articles examining the economic and cultural implications of mass media as institutions. Reflecting the rapid evolution of the field, the Fifth Edition includes 18 new readings that enhance the richness, sophistication, and diversity that characterizes contemporary media scholarship. This title: The password-protected Instructor Resource Site (formally known as SAGE Edge) offers access to all text-specific resources, including and editable, chapter-specific PowerPoint® slides.

Diffusion of Innovations, 5th Edition Feb 26 2019 Now in its fifth edition, Diffusion of Innovations is a classic work on the spread of new ideas. In this renowned book, Everett M. Rogers, professor and chair of the Department of Communication & Journalism at the University of New Mexico, explains how new ideas spread via communication channels over time. Such innovations are initially perceived as uncertain and even risky. To overcome this uncertainty, most people seek out others like themselves who have already adopted the new idea. Thus the diffusion process consists of a few individuals who first adopt an innovation, then spread the word among their circle of acquaintances—a process which typically takes months or years. But there are exceptions. The Internet in the 1990s, for example, may have spread more rapidly than any other innovation in the history of humankind. Furthermore, the Internet is changing the very nature of diffusion by decreasing the importance of physical distance between people. The fifth edition addresses the spread of the Internet, and how it has transformed the way human beings communicate and adopt new ideas.
