University English for Academic Purposes in China 2019 This book uses an in-depth, phenomenological interview approach to explain the generational characteristics of today's Chinese university youths and the critical disposition they believe indispensable in acquiring English as an academic language in and outside school settings. By presenting authentic voices of the recruited participants, the book clarifies how English for academic purposes (EAP), as a global phenomenon and a research-informed practice, enables and empowers them for conscious self-transformation, critical awareness development through language study. The book also explores issues arising in the fields of general language teaching as well as traditional and critical EAP, and discusses university English language learners' learning needs and rights. The book further promotes a dynamic and transformative University EAP pedagogy of particular practicality, and possibility moving from the oppression of language education to its liberation, and the increasing consciousness among the present and future university youths in a time of great social changes.

The Unorthodox Guide to Getting A In Math Exams 2020 After tutoring more than 50 students for Advanced Level Mathematics on a one to one basis since 2013 in Singapore, a Singapore math home tutor discovers what differentiates students who are successful at math from those who don't. The key differentiator is the individual student's approach, and this book explains those that work as well as those that inhibit the student's potential to do well. The tutor shares his personal approach of learning math that helped him get A for math exams all the way from Primary School to Junior College.

Transnational Lives in Global Cities 14 2021 This book investigates the transnational experiences of Chinese Singaporeans who lived in one of four global cities: Hong Kong, London, New York, or Singapore. Plüss argues that middle-class, well-educated, and often highly skilled migrants mostly experienced a sense of dis-embeddedness, cosmopolitanism, or hybridity, in their transnational lives. The author's multi-sited study intersects the Chinese Singaporeans' highly varied perceptions of these global cities and their biographies to show that these migrants were repeat migrants—foremost experienced ruptures and disjuncture in their education, work, family, and/or friendships/lifestyle contexts. Transnational (dis)embeddedness is explained in terms of the Chinese Singaporean resources and their views of self, others, places, and societies. Plüss recommends that research on these migrants more fully account for the complexities of transnational processes, and contributes with such a knowledge to the on transnationalism, migration, race and ethnicity, and migrant non-integration.

International Mobility and Educational Desire 30 2022 This book examines the Singapore government's controversial practice of recruiting students from China and granting them full scholarships on the condition of a service "bond." Detailed ethnographic accounts of the Chinese "foreign talent" students' educational and cross-cultural experiences in Singapore to illustrate the complex intersections between international mobility and educational desire. In doing so, it presents contemporary Singapore society's concerns over immigration and cross-cultural encounters from a unique perspective.

The Other Singapore Story: One man's journey from PSLE failure to University Graduate 04 2022 This book tells the story of a young man who failed his PSLE examinations, but through sheer determination, perseverance and hard work, he became now a graduate teacher at a primary school in Singapore. Attending a full-time vocational course (Maintenance) in the day and part-time night classes, he scored his first success — a GCE N Level certificate in 1989. While in National Service, he studied and sat for the O Level exams, not once but twice so as to get better results to enter a polytechnic. While holding full-time day jobs, he attended night classes at Ngee Ann Polytechnic and in 1997 obtained a Diploma in Industrial Engineering. In 2000, he joined the Ministry of Education and attended teacher training courses in the day while still at the polytechnic at night; by 2002, he had two more diplomas to his name — a Diploma in Education and an Advanced Diploma in Industrial Engineering and Management. Capping it all is a Bachelor of Arts in English with Psychology awarded by UniSIM in 2005. The author did not let failure set him back nor problems or challenges defeat him. He persevered with an iron will. He took a shot at every available educational opportunity Singapore offered to better himself — and he succeeded. A firm believer in lifelong learning, his 16-year journey of part-time studies covers true events of the life of a man who have helped him in one way or other.

Governance for Harmony in Asia and Beyond April 16 2021 Harmony has become a major challenge for modern governance in the twenty-first century because of the multi-religious, multi-racial and multi-ethnic character of our increasingly globalized societies. Governments all over the world are facing growing pressure to integrate the many diverse ethnic and subcultures which make up modern pluralistic societies. This book examines the idea of harmony, and its place in politics and governance, both in theory and practice, in Asia, the West and elsewhere. It explores and analyses the meaning and mechanisms, dimensions and methodologies of harmony as a normative political ideal in both Western and Asian philosophical traditions. The book argues that in Western political thought - which sees politics as primarily concerned with resolving social conflicts and protecting individual rights - the concept of harmony has often been neglected. In Asia, since earliest times harmony or 'he' has been a profound theme in Confucian thought, and current leaders of many Asian governments, and the Chinese government, have explicitly declared that the realisation of a harmonious society is their aim. The book also assesses how harmony is pursued, jeopardized or deformed in the real world of politics, based on an empirical analysis of a variety of different cultural, social and political contexts, including: China, Hong Kong, Singapore, Malaysia, Vietnam, Denmark, Latin America and the Scandinavian countries. It shows how harmony as a guiding organizing concept can help to promote new thinking in governance, and overcome problems of modern-day governance such as distrust, adversarial conflicts, hyper-individualism, coercive state intervention, and free-market alienation. It also discusses the potential problems posed by the pursuit of harmony, in particular in the grave threat of totalitarianism, and how these risks could best be mitigated.

The Diary of Amos Lee Jan 30 2022 It's my last year in primary school and I'm taking part in my school's first Twitter contest! I got myself a Twitter Account to gain supporters. I'm furious that my arch enemy, Michael, is doing this. The man, he's everywhere—Facebook, IM, YouTube, you name it. But what he doesn't realise is how popular I am. My weapon? My sister WPI (Whiny, Pesky and Irritating) and her two-girl band. She's so popular these days it's good to be my big brother. I'm kind of sad that my best friend, Alvin, is also running against me in the contest, but hey, may the best win. Psst...I've got a few tricks up my sleeve.

This Is Home Surely Jan 26 2022 "Where are you from?" An easy question for most to answer, but a very tough one for Third Culture Kids (TCKs). These children grow up outside their parents' home cultures, neither belonging entirely to their home culture nor to their host culture. They face unique challenges in establishing their identity and a sense of belonging, especially when returning to their home country. An increasing number of Singaporean families are living overseas for various reasons, and their children are growing up as TCKs. On returning to Singapore, these Singaporean TCKs have to cope with a variety of re-entry stresses when adjusting to Singapore culture, making new friends, and continuing education in the Singapore education system. Many existing books about the TCK experience are written from the perspective of other cultures, chiefly the US. This book addresses some factors unique to the Singapore environment and provides Singaporean parents with suggestions to smooth their children's re-entry to Singapore. With experience drawn from the life experiences of the authors' children and others they know personally, this book will be helpful to families of TCKs through the whole process: preparing to leave Singapore, while overseas, and, especially, when they return.

Beyond the Tiger Mom Dec 25 2021 "Beyond the Tiger Mom is a brilliant book—hard-hitting and brutally honest but also balanced, insightful, and funny." —Amy Chua, author of Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mom Dispel the hype and myths about Asian parenting and uncover the practical with this effective parenting guide. Help your child achieve maximum potential Train your child to expand his or her attention span Find the right balance between work and play Help your child see failure as a learning experience Learn how to raise tech-healthy kids How do Asian parents prime their children for success from a young age? Why do Asian kids do so well in math and science? What is the difference between an Asian upbringing and a Western one? Why do some Asian mothers see themselves as "tiger moms" while others shun the label? How do Asian parents deal with their children's failures? Is it sometimes good for children to fail? These are just some of the compelling questions posed and answered in this fascinating new parenting book by educator Maya Thiagarajan. She examines the stereotypes and goes beneath the surface to explore what really happens in Asian households. How do Asian parents think about childhood, family and education—and what can Western parents learn from them? Through with hundreds of Asian parents and kids, Thiagarajan offers a detailed look at their values, hopes, fears and parents. Woven into this narrative are her own reflections on teaching and parenting in Asia and the West. Thiagarajan synthesizes an extensive body of research to provide accessible and practical guidelines for parents. Each chapter ends with a section of specific tips for Asian and Western parents to aid their child's educational development both inside and outside the classroom.

Shakespeare in Singapore Oct 23 2021 Shakespeare in Singapore provides the first detailed and sustained study of Shakespeare in Singaporean theatre, education, and culture. This book tracks the role and development of Shakespeare education from the founding of modern Singapore to the present day, drawing on sources such as government records, the entire span of Singapore's newspaper archives, playbills, interviews with educators and theatre practitioners and existing academic sources. By uniting the critical interest in Singaporean theatre with the substantial body of knowledge that concerns global Shakespeare, the author offers a broad, yet in-depth, exploration of the ways in which Singaporean approaches to Shakespeare have been shaped by, and respond to, cultural work going on elsewhere in Asia. A vital resource for all students and scholars of Shakespeare, Shakespeare in Singapore offers a unique examination of the cultural life of Shakespeare, beyond its usual footing in the Western world.

Language Testing and Evaluation Sep 29 2019 The book brings together two related fields — language testing and language programme evaluation — in a way that no single introductory text has done, and seeks to encourage closer relationships between the two in both academic curricula and professional practice. It introduces readers not just to basic concepts, but also to the major social, educational and research concerns and activities that characterise language testing and evaluation. This book can serve either as a basic text for a taught course, or as independent reading in self-study mode. All chapters include suggestions for further reading, and discussions frequently point towards possible explorations in classroom research and practice. A glossary of key concepts and a select annotated bibliography are provided.

The APPSMO Advantage: Strategic Opportunities 2021 The book The APPSMO Advantage: Strategic Opportunities is on the Asia Pacific Programme for Senior Military Officers (APPSMO). APPSMO is a series of conferences organised by the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies and its predecessor, the Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies, for senior military officers of Singapore and other countries of the Asia Pacific, consisting of an intensive week-long programme of lectures, forums, and discussion groups. Very senior speakers share their views on strategic matters, and defend their views on military issues. The programme brings together key people whose fingers are on the trigger to enable them to connect with each other directly and informally, thereby enhancing networking among their defence forces, while benefiting from the contacts and exchanges between the scholarly and policy communities.

PISA Take the Test Sample Questions from OECD's PISA Assessment 2020 This book presents all the publicly available questions from the PISA surveys. Some of these questions were used in the PISA 2000, 2003 and 2006 surveys, while others were used in developing and trying out the assessment.

Studying Singapore's Past Nov 23 2021 C.M. (Mary) Turnbull's contributions to historical writing on Singapore extend far beyond her 1962 thesis, published in 1972 as "The Straits Settlements, 1826-1867: Indian Presidency to Crown Colony Magisterial history of Singapore, first published in 1977 and re-issued in 2009 in an updated edition as A History of Singapore, 1819-2005. Her approach to history involved detailed work with documents and published materials, with a particular focus on political and economic history. One contributor to the present volume described the book as "a work in endowing a modern 'nation-state' with a coherent past that should explain the present." As styles in history changed, younger scholars including some of her former students and colleagues began exploring new approaches to historical research that drew on non-English-language source material and asked fresh questions of the sources. Mary enjoyed controversy and expected debate, and had a deep interest in these accounts, which were in many ways a natural outgrowth from her own publications even when they raised questions about her interpretations and conclusions. Studying Singapore's Past had its origins in a conference organised to discuss her work. The volume includes ten contributions, some from established scholars of Singapore's history, others from a new generation of researchers. Their work offers an alternative to established understandings of Singapore's history, and gives an indication of new directions that researchers are exploring. In publishing the book, the editor not only pays tribute to a distinguished historian but also seeks to make a contribution to the historiography of Singapore and to ongoing debates about Singapore's past.
